Chris Code, speed freak extraordinaire

By James Richardson

Off the phone Chris Code, 20-year-old, has a lot to say about hockey. He says he's a "speed freak" and that he's a "hockey addict." He says he's a "hockey addict" and that he's a "hockey addict."

His speed freak, Chris Code, has a lot to say about hockey. He says he's a "speed freak" and that he's a "hockey addict." He says he's a "hockey addict" and that he's a "hockey addict."

Forward Boris Park, who played major with Code, got to know a higher side of him.

"Code was always in trouble and had a bad time playing with him. He was always in trouble and had a bad time playing with him."

Park said he was always in trouble and had a bad time playing with him. He says he's a "hockey addict" and that he's a "hockey addict."

"I never wanted to add being on the team to my already bad time playing with him. He was always in trouble and had a bad time playing with him."

He said Code brought some fun and excitement to the team. He says he's a "hockey addict" and that he's a "hockey addict."
